

Abstract:

When the number of variables compared with the number of observations is large we present a new approach of estimating the parameters describing the mean structure in the Growth Curve model.